Great Success For Film Student

The Gold Coast Film Festival took place from 3-14th April across locations on and around the Gold Coast. As part of the festival, the EMERGE! Short Films category brought a showcase of short films from some of Queensland's most recent graduating film students. The event is designed to showcase the best and brightest film talent from Queensland's next generation of filmmakers from film schools, universities and TAFE.

The Best Student Short Film Award was awarded on the night to the best film, as judged by Gold Coast Film Festival Program Director Rich Haridy.

We are both proud and excited to announce that our recent Film and Television graduate, Julian Cullen, was the winner of the EMERGE short film category with his graduate film, EMBER.

EMBER is a film about a young girl and her companion who survive day by day in a post-apocalyptic environment. While resting beside a campfire the pair are approached by a stranger from the distance - and their lives were never the same again.

Music Video Success for Bond Film Students and Alumni

Gold Coast local artist, Calan Mai, has been steadily building a following both here and abroad. Calan has been nominated for two awards at this year's Gold Coast Music Awards, with his gorgeously jaunty track 'XO'. We are proud to have had both Film and Television Alumni and current students work on the accompanying music video to this song.

Bright Future Awaits Architecture Graduate

Congratulations to Master of Architecture graduate, Anthony Pannolino, who was honoured with The Board of Architects Prize for the greatest proficiency at the Abedian School of Architecture, Bond University in 2018!

Currently working as an Architectural Designer at Altius Architecture Inc in Toronto, Canada, Anthony is "passionate about the quality of craftsmanship and the consideration of detail in the built environment".

Find out more about Anthony here.

From Bond University to Netflix Headquarters

In case you haven't got the memo, Bachelor of Communications Alumna (2001), Caroline Morgan, has been achieving some pretty great things in the corporate world! Caroline is currently the Director of Product Research and Consumer Insights at none other than streaming juggernaut, Netflix.

In a recent article, Caroline speaks about the entertainment industry, Netflix's place in the world, and working on THAT episode that shocked the world, Black Mirror: Bandersnatch.

IMD Student To Feature at Bletchley Park Museum

Interactive Media and Design student, Liam Pillay, has gone above and beyond in a recent assessment which has landed his project a spot at Bletchley Park Museum in the UK. Liam's project was a VR recreation of a decryption device known as The Bombe used during WWII. "I had initially thought of the project to be an easy to complete task for a client but ended up being A LOT more difficult than initially envisioned", Liam said of the project.

"For starters; the Bombe was a machine built in WW2 in secrecy and was destroyed with most (if not all) of its documents. This meant that a very large portion of time into the project was spent figuring out what this was, how it worked, who worked with it, and with what tools and knowledge. Secondly, the project had required a much higher skill level in programming, communication, and group time management, than what I was used to. I had help from Darren Chapman, CEO of the IT Forum Gold Coast who mentored me during this project. Having to share knowledge between Darren, Cooper Nonggorr (the 3D modeler of the project), and I was challenging as I had to translate each specialization (3d modelling, c# programming, interaction design) into another one to get across ideas and lay out a spreadsheet of tasks for each person to do".

Congratulations on your success, Liam!

Great Success For Past FSD Study Exchange Student

The Columbia World Affairs Council (CWAC) recently announced its new Director of Communications and Development, and she just so happens to be a past FSD study exchange student! Tia Williams "joins the CWAC in an earnest effort to showcase South Carolina while bridging the vast cultural and economic opportunity between global and regional stakeholders". Peta Stapleton Strikes Again

Another great feature for Associate Professor of Psychology, Dr Peta Stapleton, in the April edition of Gold Coast's Get It Magazine. Peta talks about the current medical trials helping the approximate one in four adults worldwide that suffer from chronic pain, and the roughly 70 million sufferers of eating disorders.

Dr Tim O'Dowd is an IVF Specialist, Gynaecologist, Obstetrician, and Nutritionist, with over 44 years' experience.

Dr Peta Stapleton is a Clinical & Health Psychologist with 20 years' experience, and currently an Associate Professor in Psychology at Bond University.

Dr Soraya Felix is a Board-Certified General Specialist, Molecular Biologist, Pharmacologist, and Clinical Chemist. She completed 7 years of postgraduate research in Pharmacology and has over 28 years' of experience.

“ Important trials are taking place, and studies are being put forward from Gold Coast's sun-kissed shores; providing vital findings. ”

Mike Grenby Up Close With Icebergs

Have you ever wondered if the grass is greener in Greenland? Well, we doubt it, seeing as it is 85% covered with ice up to 3.2 kilometres thick! "The most sparsely populated place on earth (0.026 humans per square kilometre), Greenland is the world's largest non-continental island with 2.4 million square kilometres", Senior Teaching Fellow, Mike Grenby, wrote for a recent Coast Reporter article.

Lost in Larrimah, the next Game of Thrones?

We aren't the only ones cheering on Senior Teaching Fellow, Caroline Graham, in her bid with a top American network to transform Lost in Larrimah into a TV series. HBO have signed a deal to visualise Lost in Larrimah - and everyone is talking about it! HBO is known for housing mega-shows such as Game of Thrones, Big Little Lies, The Sopranos and Sex and the City, to name a few.
